

Doc IPPC 4.1

Enviromental Effects

As previously recorded the Acetylene plant in question is described as a closed system , implying that emissions are kept to a bare minimum. No significant environmental effects have been noted in this regard. Moreover, available literature does not indicate or infer that acetylene production is a source of undesired environmental effects.